

20 Online Resources for Physical Education:

	Website:	Uses:	Description:
1.	www.Twitter.com (Global)	Connecting with other professionals in the P.E. community from around the world, sharing thoughts/ideas, platform for sharing what is going on in your classroom, finding links and resources, and receiving updates on what is new in P.E. http://www.melhamada.com/2013/07/12/twitter/@MelJHamada (Japan) Twitter Challenge: https://www.smores.com/y4nu-the-14-day-twitter-challenge @MrRobbo (AU)	It's all about who and what # 's you follow. Following quality educators and leaders in the P.E. community is inspiring and motivating. To be active in the community it takes a little time and an open mind. #physed #pechat #peplc #edchat #pegeek
2.	www.ThePEGeek.com (Australia)	Explore, Listen, Learn, Apply.... Excellent resource if you want to explore technology and 21 st century learning tools in P.E. - @MrRobbo (Jarrod Robinson- AU) also has a Podcast (Radio Show) http://thepegeekpodcast.podomatic.com/ where he talks through the different Apps and each episode has a different theme. Each about 20 min. long. His Apps which he creates specifically for P.E. : http://thepegeekapps.com/ Follow @ThePEGeekApps (AU) Found in itunes: https://itunes.apple.com/au/app/pe-apps-mobile-resource-for/id639477625?mt=8	@MrRobbo does a nice job of creating and presenting Apps that you could actually use in class to enhance engagement and learning. He provides real life examples of how you can use an App.
3.	www.iphys-ed.com (Singapore)	Inquiry & Technology in P.E. - Check out resources, blogs, and the #PhysEd podcast It's not all tech Classroom Management "Hacks" - http://www.iphys-ed.com/inquiry-in-pe @PeNathan (founder of iphys-ed.com) and @JoeyFeith (founder of thePhysicalEducator.com) Join forces for the #PhysEd Podcast http://www.iphys-ed.com/physed-podcast.html	I find myself to be more receptive to the information posted and discussed through this website as I haven't yet infused technology into my P.E. program.
4.	www.appsforacademics.net (Japan)	Created by @MelJHamada who also has www.melhamada.com in AppsForAcademics she has a blog section where she discusses apps to make our life easier	Another resource to help explore the use of apps in the academic world and connecting them to how they can be a powerful tool in P.E.
5.	www.PhysEdGames.com (Canada)	Truly a library of resources on one site. I love how there are so many videos. There is also a section devoted to literacy: http://physedgames.com/category/literacy/ @PhysEdGames	Simple game ideas for P.E. teachers and easy-to-follow videos with explanations.
6.	www.ThePhysicalEducator.com (Canada)	Checkout the podcast and blog where you'll find ideas and sources of inspiration. FREE resources. Also use this as Professional Development. Sign-up for #PhysEd U: http://www.thephysicaleducator.com/u/ @PEChatSummary	"Rethinking What Can Be Done in Physical Education" #PEChat #PEChatSummary
7.	http://www.peprn.com/ (UK)	Talk board, Group blog, Shared resources that you can download, and useful evidence from research	@DrAshCasey (founder) It's a site

		that can help enhance learning. Podcast: http://peprn.podomatic.com/	that has conversations and challenges us to improve as educators. #peprn
8.	www.PypPEwithAndy.com (China)	Assessment resources and blog. I like that he shows student work. It's a good place to get ideas and make them your own. He teaches younger students, but his vision is adaptable for any grade level.	@AndyVasily (founder)
9.	www.SparkPE.org	Webinars, blogs, and Enewsletter	@SparkPE
10	www.JonesytheTeacher.net (Australia)	Info, blog, pedagogies He seems like a real talk kind of guy. Tech Tools: http://jonesytheteacher.net/web-2-0/ can be put into assessment/classroom tools	@JoneytheTeachr
11	www.MakingPEFizz.com (Australia)	Info, blog, real life application "As the title suggests, I am on an endless pursuit to explore all of the wonderful things that happen before, during and after our PE lessons that really allow learning to "FIZZ". -Ross Halliday	@RossHalliday (founder)
12	www.NationalPE.com	Great videos for PD
13	www.Pinterest.com	Ideas, videos, management strategies, games, activities. Just enter in the search column what you would like to search for ie. Physical Education, PE Games ...	Search tool posted by a variety of people.
14	www.Physedagogy.com	Discusses modern PE Practices covering topics such as: Teaching and Learning, Classroom Management, Assessment and Grading, Growth and Reflection, Technology, and Advocacy @AdamPHowell @MissHartl @J_JonesPe @GHSaysrockchalk @CollinBrooksie @PhysEd_Pomeroy	#Physedagogy #PhysEdSummit
15	www.PEScholar.com (UK)	Excellent blog source and video resources	@PEScholar
16	http://ghphysed.weebly.com/ (USA)	Sarah G-H Posts as well as poses many essential questions for the educator. I also like how she presents herself to her students/their families through her website. She is a good example. She is also one of the partners in Physedagogy .	@GHSaysRockChalk
17	www.YouTube.com	Yes, YOUTUBE. We all know it, but do you know what channels you should be watching? Here are some channels that @MissHartl follows: http://www.youtube.com/channel/UCKzNabD19rNAg7IkYMR6M9w/channels
18	www.shapeamerica.org (USA)	Standards
19	http://www.nhahperd.org (USA, NH)	News for what is going on in New Hampshire	Shape America is the NEW AAPERD. "New name, clear vision"
20	www.PEPLC.com http://www.youtube.com/user/PEPLCnet	Though there is only one or two P.E. teacher per school that does not limit out Professional Learning Community. Fortunately this need and want for the lonely P.E. teacher to reach-out has created a world of recourses.	#PEPLC The site is comprised of blogs and recourses from our top educators in the field http://www.peplc.net/who-are-we.html